

CONCISE EXECUTIVE WRITING

1-Day Training Workshop

Whatever profession you might pursue, you write. You write letters, emails, reports, stories.

In this training, let's forget about specific writing. The underlining skill set for the modern workplace is based on just three words: "less is more".

Be it your boss, your colleagues or your subordinates, who exactly has the time to read long paragraphs to get to the point? Worse, lengthy stories may distract readers and ultimately hinder your objective and desired response you require from your audience.

While the rationale is sound, concise writing is easier said than done. Many of us could not resist the temptation to be thorough and complete in our reports.

This course will highlight the various pitfalls of "loose writing", and equip participants with the essential knowledge towards writing concisely for effective results.
